

To identify and use relative clauses.

Task 1. Identify the relative clauses in each of these sentences by copying only the relative clause out into your book:

Jim, who was an overweight whale, bumped his head on an oil tanker as he swam.

The villain marched across the crater that had once been a playing-field full of flowers.

The police officer called to his partner, who ignored him and continued to eat his doughnut.

I'm looking for a minion that can use Word 2010.

The man, who lives next door to me, might be a werewolf.

Task 2. Using the pictures below, choose 8 pictures and write sentences which include relative clauses in different positions (at the end of the sentence as well as embedded into the middle of one).
